SOURCE

1. The following units worked on the construction of the new barracks for armored units in Strasice: The 5th company of the 60th Auxiliary Technical Battalion from Svata Dobrotiva; three companies of the 59th Auxiliary Technical Battalion which was formerly also in Svata Dobrotiva; one company from Zatec (I do not know to which unit this company belonged); and 400 volunteer-soldiers. The construction was under the direction of the ARMASTAV, National Corporation in Pilsen, and employed 1300 persons of whom 200 were civilians.
2. In addition to building the barracks, the same units worked on the construction of garages for armored cars and automobiles, houses for officers, and roads for tanks and armored cars. The new garages contained eight armored cars, without guns but equipped with devices for towing stalled vehicles, and eight half-tracks armed with two machineguns each. Other garages contained passenger cars and trucks of various makes, including jeeps, 30 Soviet T-34 tanks, and 30 German tanks from World War II.
